Group registration discounts are also available if your company is sending multiple attendees. These are also outlined in the link above.

If you have any questions about registration please use the enquiries email at the end of the newsletter.

For travel planning be advised we plan for the conference to end a little later this year at around 4:30pm on Wednesday June 14 (rather than 3pm as in previous years).

SPOTLIGHT ON: Draft Scientific Programme now available online!

The draft Scientific Programme for the conference is now available.

As well as the session titles the draft agenda includes as much information about the speakers and titles of talks that we have. You will see we have lots of great content across the 3 days!

The programme includes the keynote speakers mentioned in the previous newsletter, there will be the ever popular Regulatory hot topics session, the one minute poster session and many sessions organised by the PSI Special Interest groups. To reflect the increasing interest in, and importance of, Health Technology Assessment (HTA) we have added a new HTA hot topics session to close the conference. We also have many sessions based on submitted abstracts. In response to the positive feedback we received on the interactive sessions given in Gothenburg we have an increased number of these sessions in 2023.

Attendance numbers for these sessions will be more limited and we will share how to sign-up in the near future.

Finally, to reflect the amount of great content we have you will see we have 5 parallel sessions on some days and the conference will finish a little later this year (4:30pm Wednesday June 14). View full details below!

Pre-Conference Courses

The PSI training committee are running two courses:

1. 'Increasing your Agility' is an engaging and interactive session on agile ways of working that will help you prioritise and deliver more effectively;
2. 'Improving Precision and Power in Randomized Trials by Leveraging Baseline Variables' will cover covariate adjustment concepts and how to use them in practice (including a new statistical method that enables the easy combination of covariate adjustment with group sequential designs).

Pre-Conference Courses take place on the afternoon of Sunday 11 June. Full details are included below.

Call for Sponsors!

We are pleased to announce that the Delegate & Exhibition packages for the 2023 PSI Conference are now available online.

Sponsorship Opportunities

With an exciting range of sponsored items available, from limited Gold sponsorship packages to social events and conference sessions, there are many opportunities to get involved. This year we have introduced new opportunities to offset the carbon footprint of the conference and to provide additional support for academics and students. The packages on offer have been tailored to meet the needs of all supporters of PSI; education, networking, recruitment, business development and branding.

Exhibition stands and sponsorship opportunities will also be sold and allocated on a first-come-first-served basis, so book your place now! Please contact Aiden Flynn to discuss the sponsorship opportunities available.

There's still time to submit a Poster Abstract!

While the deadline for oral presentation abstracts has passed there is still time to submit an abstract to be considered as a poster. As well as displaying your poster during the conference, acceptance of a poster abstract means you can present your work in the fun and informal one minute poster session "Gone in 60 seconds"!

Poster abstract submission is open until 25 February 2023.

A Message from the Conference Chair

Registration is now open and the draft agenda is almost complete! It is looking to be an exciting conference packed with great material and many opportunities to meet and socialise with your peers. Don't forget the early bird deadline is March 25 2023. Register today!
